Johnson finished with 127 yards on nine carries, but six of those carries went for more than 10 yards. The senior receiver broke free on a 58-yard run on Stanford's first offensive play from scrimmage. The Cardinal went on to score 22 points off a pair of sensational touchdowns by Johnson, who had 13 rushes and six receptions. Johnson's explosive third quarter was a reminder of what the Cardinal offense is capable of. One of Stanford's biggest questions entering the season was whether the Cardinal would be able to get anything out of its running game without Andrew Luck. Saturday's performance showed that Stanford still has the ability to move the ball on the ground, something that will be crucial as the Cardinal prepares for the Arizona schools this weekend. Greg Mattison said earlier this week that the defense is making progress, but it is the offense that has to carry the team to the finish. He said that the team is capable of producing big plays when it gets into a rhythm and that it will be up to the defense to stop the opposing offense. Johnson's performance on Saturday showed that Stanford has the ability to gain a rhythm and create big plays if it can get a hand on the football. The Cardinal can put up big numbers in the passing game when it is on top of the football, and this year, it is the running game that is the order of the day. Stanford is 5-0 on the season, but if its only goal is to win the Pac-12 North, the Cardinal has no business resting on its laurels. Against an Arizona State team that has seen a steady decline since Jeff Tedford's departure, the Cardinal will have to face a heightened level of pressure, and a team that wants to win the Pac-12 North outright. I just have no idea what to do with the overwhelming amounts of awesomeness I come across there. Basically, my focus is on lifting heavy things. I am, however, now developing a reputation of being able to tell when someone is marketing something unrelated to lifting heavy things with the letters "LHT." This is really common. People are selling knives, lawn mowers, and – you guessed it – weights/weight lifting on the same set of images and videos. What I find hilarious, however, is that you have to research at least this far before you find any LHT link, and you have to search in at least three different places before you find anything that stands out. It's the kind of thing that you would expect a marketing guy/gal to know to avoid. What's more, when you finally hit one of these sites, you're shocked to find that they actually name weightlifting as a legitimate sport, and that "weightlifting" actually has real meaning. So you think "My God, what a clever marketing ploy. What a great idea to promote this thing that makes no sense and has no real meaning in our culture whatsoever." And then you realize that said marketing 648931e174
