(with their trials) Marin County officials approved a permit for a new gas pipeline in the county in December 2012. The approval was part of a 45-year-old pipeline that runs between Bodega Bay and Guerneville. The new pipeline, a 12-mile line from a site near Boyes Hot Springs to Guerneville, would pass through Blue Lake, and through the Redwood Creek watershed. That portion of the county was designated a wild and scenic river area by the State of California, and also part of a federal cultural corridor. As part of its review, county staff performed a comprehensive wildlife study for the pipeline. Studies analyzed the impact of the pipeline on fish and other wildlife. The study concluded that there would be no impact to stream health or fish population, and that the line would
